LONDON, July 28—The Italian news agency today broadcast a statement that the cabinet of Marshal Badoglio in its first meeting had decided to dissolve the Fascist party.

BULLETIN

LONDON, July 28—A Reuter dispatch from the Italo-Swiss frontier reported today that all work has stopped in Milan, with the population demonstrating in the streets for "peace and liberty." No bloodshed was reported.

LONDON, July 28—Italy has lost her empire and colonial restoration has no place in the present plans of the United Nations, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today as rumors of peace overtures by Marshal Pietro Badoglio were squelched by authoritative spokesmen.

The third day following former Premier Benito Mussolini's dramatic disappearance from the rulership of Italy again found London a veritable beehive of rumor and speculation.

But these salient facts developed:

1—Great Britain does not intend by any means to restore to any reconstituted government of Italy the African possessions lost by her in battle.

2—No peace overtures have yet been made by the Badoglio government and the war goes on and will continue until Italian capitulates or has been beaten to her knees.

3—Mussolini remains the war's No. 1 mystery man, with no clue as to his whereabouts, his future or his fate emerging from a welter of unverified rumors.

Rumors of Peace

Chief among the rumors was the persistent report that peace negotiations have been started through the medium of the Vatican. The Morocco radio, none too reliable in the past, said flatly that Pope Pius, acting as intermediary for the Badoglio government, had approached Harold Tittman, United States charge d'affaires at the Vatican.

Speaking for the aged marshal who now governs Italy, the pontiff was said to have requested the terms on which the Allies would negotiate peace. This report continued to circulate in the face of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's emphatic declaration yesterday that only unconditional surrender is acceptable and that Italy would be invaded, seized, (Continued on Page Two)

Vice President Accused Of Selfish Attempt To Divide Nation

WASHINGTON, July 28—The GOP centered its fire on Vice President Henry A. Wallace today with Republican National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler charging that Wallace is playing into Hitler's hands and seeking to divide the nation internally for "selfish, political gain."

Spangler attacked Wallace for his recent Detroit speech which President Roosevelt said he liked very much. In the address Wallace attacked "powerful groups," who, he said, were taking advantage of Mr. Roosevelt's concentration on the war in an effort to destroy all (Continued on Page Two)

MOTORISTS GRIN AS GAS PROBER FACES COURT

NEW YORK, July 28—Motorists said today it was almost worth it to pay a fine in traffic court yesterday for there at the head of the line was an OPA gasoline investigator.

Irving Tick, the investigator, refused to disclose why he was in an illegal parking zone, saying it was "confidential."

"There's nothing confidential about your conviction," Magistrate Robert F. Mahoney replied cheerfully as he fined Tick $4 or two days in jail.

"I resent that," said Tick, but paid the $4.

WORK TOO HARD WAC SAYS, AND SHE GOES AWOL

Grubbing stumps in southern Alabama's 120-degree temperature as a member of the Women's Army Corps was too much for Miss Mary L. Hammond, 39, of Columbus, so she went AWOL.

That was the story she told Sheriff Charles Radcliff Tuesday afternoon when the sheriff took her into custody at a Scioto township farm where she was busy canning black berries for a farmer who had employed her. The sheriff declined to name the owner of the farm on which she was working.

Miss Hammond, who joined the women's army unit last November in Columbus, admitted to the sheriff that she had left Camp Craig, Ala., without permission, put on her uniform and accompanied the sheriff to Fort Hayes. She said she had fled the camp when she and other members of the WAC were called to remove stumps.

Surrender of Miss Hammond to Fort Hayes posed a question for authorities at the army air base. She was the first AWOL WAC ever turned over there. The captain of the guard called Lockbourne air base for advice, he called other posts at Fort Hayes, the navy recruiting station in Columbus, and several other places before he finally decided to detain Miss Hammond in a part of the hospital building.

"Might just as well fix up a vanity dresser and a mirror and all other equipment for the girls, because this is probably just the first of a long string of them," he told the sheriff.

FDR IRKED BY ATTACK ON KING

Inquiry Ordered Into OWI Broadcast To Italians Rapping Leaders

WASHINGTON, July 28—President Roosevelt is understood to have ordered an investigation of the unwarranted Office of War Information broadcast to Italy which called King Victor Emmanuel "the moronic little king" and labeled Marshal Pietro Badoglio a "high ranking Fascist."

The President said that the broadcast was not authorized by himself, the state department or by Robert Sherwood, chief of OWI's overseas division and declared that he will "crack down" on the person responsible.

In some quarters it was charged that Communist sympathizers in OWI were responsible for the attack against the two new Italian leaders. This led to other charges that the government information office was attempting to foment a Communist revolution in Italy. (Continued on Page Two)

BOY IS ONLY FATALITY

Streets Of Cities Flooded, Houses Destroyed By 130 Mile Gale

HOUSTON, Tex., July 28—A terrific hurricane which struck Houston, Galveston, and surrounding communities left in its wake today damage estimated at from one to two million dollars and upward of 100 persons injured.

Streets of the two cities were flooded, homes and other buildings were blown down and demolished by the gale which reached an unofficial velocity of more than 130 miles an hour, and communications throughout the area were disrupted.

Only one fatality was recorded, that of a five-year-old boy, in Houston as residents began taking stock today of the destruction wrought.

Houston authorities estimated that 100 persons were injured by flying debris and other mishaps during the height of the hurricane, but an accurate count awaited the restoration of telephone service.

During last night, it was possible at times for outside cities to reach Houston and Galveston by telephone, but most of the time the stricken community could not put through a call to other localities.

Galveston, where the hurricane struck at 1:45 p. m. yesterday, reported wind velocities ranging from 70 miles an hour to brief gusts that reached 95 miles an hour.

The maximum velocity in Houston was estimated at more than 130 miles an hour, but this was unofficial.

Power was on only intermittently last night in Houston. Street lights flickered on and off.

Plate glass windows in the business sections of Galveston and Houston were shattered, and information trickling in from nearby towns told of similar damage.

Trees were uprooted. Telephone and telegraph poles fell leaving a maze of broken, tangled wires, as repair crews struggled to maintain service.

ARMY PROBING THIRST DEATHS OF SOLDIERS

CAMP YOUNG, Cal., July 28—An army board of inquiry today investigated the death of three soldiers who died of thirst in the arid Chocolate mountain region south of El Centro, Cal., after they became lost during army maneuvers.

A fourth soldier still was missing.

The four men, whose names were temporarily withheld, were members of a platoon of 39 engaging in maneuvers with other units. Becoming lost over the week end in the hottest temperature ever recorded on the southeastern California desert, six fellow soldiers made their way to a railroad and flagged a train.

When they eventually returned with water, the three infantrymen were dead, the fourth lost and several others in critical condition. The rescued men all will recover, the army said.

The temperature at El Centro Sunday reached 124 degrees. It was believed to have exceeded 145 degrees in the desolate desert area where the soldiers died.

95 County Residents Get Silver Pins As Three Time Blood Donors

Ninety-five Pickaway countians, including many parents of boys who are fighting in the world's scattered war theatres, were qualified to wear Red Cross silver pins Wednesday, indicating that they gave a pint of their blood for the third time at the mobile unit blood bank stationed at the Methodist church.

The division between women and men who donated blood for the third time was nearly equal, 49 women being counted out of the total of 95. All blood taken from Circleville goes into the Red Cross blood plasma bank for shipment to all parts of the world where it has saved countless lives of wounded men.

County Falls Down

Pickaway county fell down considerably during the third visit of the mobile unit, a total of only 222 pints of blood being taken. Franklin county Red Cross had asked that not so many persons be registered for this visit, so the local chapter conformed by signing up only 280 persons for the two day stay here. However, numerous cancellations were received and a larger number of persons than usual were rejected for one reason or another. The last time the unit was here the two days provided 334 pints of blood.

Returning In October

The mobile unit is scheduled for its fourth visit to Circleville, but not until October 18, giving all persons who have been regular visitors to the blood bank unit an opportunity to be in the pink for the next call of the Red Cross bank outfit. In the meantime local Red Cross officials are planning to take some steps to sign up persons who have not yet donated blood to help the boys who are fighting the war. ### ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well, we have discovered why so many people are insulting each other these days.

It's the Board of War Communications ban on telegrams of felicitation and congratulation.

For instance when Hen Wallace defines an "American Fascist" as anybody who doesn't agree with Hen Wallace, millions of super-heated patriots rush to the telegraph office to wire "you done noble Hen—felicitations and congratulations."

Millions of anti-Wallace fans rush to the telegraph office to wire "you (one word censored)!"

So what happens? So the girl in the telegraph office shifts her gum to the other cheek and says "The War Board of Communications won't let us accept the telegram of congratulations and felicitations. The other one is all right."

And there you are. Or rather there is Hen without one teeny weeny telegraphed word of congratulations and felicitations.

Thought for the day: If it's a knock, don't write—telegraph. If it's a boost, don't telegraph—write.

WISCONSIN LAW AIMS AT BLACK MARKET DEALS

MADISON, Wis., July 28—Wisconsin today became the first state in the nation to outlaw black markets on the statute books.

The bill was signed by Acting Governor Walter S. Goodland with apparent doubts about making it stick. Goodland's cryptic observation was, "some laws cannot be enforced."

The bill provides maximum penalties, on both buyer and seller, of $250 in fines or 90 days in jail, for illegal dealing in rationed commodities.

A host of state and OPA officials, headed by Regional OPA Director Raymond McKeough of Chicago, was present at the signing.

ROOSEVELT TO WARN ITALIANS

President Expected To Urge Hun Ouster As Prelude To Peace

WASHINGTON, July 28—President Roosevelt tonight is expected to urge the Italian people to get rid of the Germans in Italy as a prelude to peace with the United Nations.

Authoritative sources in Washington indicated the President also is likely to warn the American people against over-optimism concerning any early end to the war as a result of the collapse of Benito Mussolini's Fascist regime in Italy.

There is reason to believe the President, at the same time, will reaffirm the American government's determination to insist on the unconditional surrender of Italy.

He may deal with some of the domestic problems confronting the United States that are a part of America's war front against the Axis powers.

The President is spending most of the day putting the finishing touches on his war report to the nation, which will be broadcast over all major networks at 9:30 p. m. EDT.

The American government's attitude toward the dramatic events which have taken place in Italy will form an important part of the President's broadcast.

WASHINGTON, July 28—A new surprise raid on Japanese held Wake Island in mid-Pacific and 19 more aerial assaults on enemy positions on Kiska Island in the Aleutians were reported today by the United States Navy.

The assault on Wake was the second in four days and American long-range bombers reached their target after shooting down seven Jap Zeros, probably destroying five more and damaging three others.

The 19 attacks on Kiska were over a two day period, Monday and yesterday.

STOCKHOLM, July 28—German submarine crews stationed in Norwegian ports are mutinying and many Nazi sailors have been sentenced to death for participation in the disorders, the Oslo correspondent of the Stockholm Aftonbladet reported tonight.

Mutinies broke out recently at Stavanger, Trondheim and elsewhere, the paper reported, with at least one U-boat destroyed by its crew in outright sabotage.

BULLETIN

LONDON, July 28—Allied fighters and bombers filled the sky over the English channel throughout the daylight hours today as they headed out for northern France. At times observers on the coast could hear the crash of high explosives, presumably from bursting heavy bombs.

By International News Service
The great German port of Hamburg was blasted from the air last night for the sixth successive time in 72 hours by waves of Royal Air Force bombers which attacked in very great strength in an apparent attempt to obliterate the seaport.

The paralyzing assault on Hamburg, Germany's most important seaport and the largest port on the continent, was the 104th raid on that city. Hamburg was placed alongside Bremen in second place on the list of the most-bombed cities of the world.

Bombers of the United States Eighth Air Force joined with the RAF in the current series of raids to destroy the port, ship and u-boat construction centers and war factories located there.

The possibility was seen among London observers that the severe aerial onslaught might inspire uprisings against the Nazi authorities similar to the naval mutinies which beset the regime of Kaiser Wilhelm in the First World War. Cologne, with 120 raids, is the only city to outrank Hamburg and Bremen in number of raids suffered.

The Berlin radio quoted authoritative German quarters as admitting that further large-scale devastation resulted from the new bombardment of Hamburg.

CHURCHILL TALK HEARD IN FULL ON ROME RADIO

LONDON, July 28—Broadcast accounts of the speech made yesterday by Prime Minister Winston Churchill warning the Italians to seek peace or be destroyed were heard in full in Rome last night, according to Italians arriving by air today in Madrid, Reuter's reported.

Italians who have reached the Spanish capital in the last 24 hours reiterated that Italy will continue in the war only if Germany gives adequate aid for the defense of the southern part of the country.

scarred and blackened from end to end unless the military alliance with Germany is abrogated and Italian arms laid down.

Equally persistent was the report that the bulk of the Italian army has been moved back to the Po river and 20 Italian divisions recalled from the Balkans.

All fell into the category of unconfirmed and unconfirmable rumors.

Mysterious Duce

Spain, Switzerland, Southern Ireland and Nazi Germany meanwhile were put forward as possible resting places for Mussolini. But in point of fact, he remained as invisible and unlocatable as he has been for the last two months at least.

So far as the situation inside Italy was concerned, this too remained within the realm of speculation. The Swiss radio quoted the newspaper Corriere Della Sera of Milan as saying new demonstrations had taken place in that city, with the Fascist "retreating" to the suburbs and barricading themselves in houses to snipe at workers and soldiers.

"The fighting is difficult, protracted and bloody," this newspaper was quoted as saying.

Corriere added that the military commander of Milan had asked all workers to return to their jobs. They were said to have complied yesterday morning, but again left the factories in the afternoon, whereupon troops were called out.

Balkan Defections

Rumors of Balkan defections in the wake of Mussolini's retirement continued as well. Yugoslavian circles in London said that on frequent occasions in recent weeks there have been reports of peace moves on the part of Hungary although nothing tangible has developed.

It is known that certain Hungarian diplomats recently arrived in Istanbul to sound out the possibility of obtaining Turkey's good offices in a peace settlement, these circles said, despite the fact Budapest has every reason to know that Allied terms call for unconditional surrender first and bargaining afterward.

Well-informed circles, however, said it was possible that Hungarian diplomats may have unofficially approached Yugoslavian diplomats in purely personal exchanges. But it was reiterated that Yugoslavian officials in London "know absolutely nothing of any concrete official peace move from Hungary."

Finland, incidentally, threatened to come into the "peace rumor" picture with a report by the Swiss radio that the parliament in Helsinki will adjourn shortly after passing a socialist motion demanding a full government report on foreign policy.

The British spokesman who announced "the war goes on" was emphatic in his declaration that no armistice move has yet been made by Badoglio.

ONE-MAN ATTIC SHOPS HELP UNCLE SAM FIND "EYES" FOR HIS FIGHTING FORCES

By ALLAN J. FUNCH
Central Press Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Typical American ingenuity has once again overcome a critical war-conditioned shortage.

For years the United States has been importing large quantities of high grade foreign-made optics. Suddenly the imports were cut off razor-sharp and the nephews of Uncle Sam were left with the job of producing lenses for bomb and gun sights, periscopes, range and height finders and binoculars.

It was a job which Americans had never tackled on a mass production basis because of the high degree of perfection required in the grinding of precision lenses. In a roof prism—used in range finders—the government grants an allowance of two millionths of a circle. That is an allowance that is so small it must be measured by a beam of light.

Theoretically, that type of work called for too much patience and dexterity for the American worker. But a lot of theories have been tossed out the window since Dec. 7, 1941—and this one was to follow suit.

Ordinance officials at the Frankford arsenal in Philadelphia, faced with the problem of getting eyes for the armed forces, naturally contacted as many of the operating optical works in the country as they could. Even so, the demand was greater than the supply.

Enter: The One-Man Shop

That was when a heretofore unknown quantity—the one-man shop—suddenly came into its own. In cellars and attics throughout the nation were men grinding out optics for the fun of it, as hobbies, or simply on so small a scale they were never given the recognition due them.

Take, for example, the case of John Unerl. When war broke out, he was turning out rifle sights in a tiny cellar workshop in Pittsburgh. The rifle sights, better than average, came to the attention of officials at the Frankford arsenal and the proprietor of the one-man shop was contacted and given a token order.

On home-made equipment, Unerl ground the rough optical glass (which varies in value from a cent to $20 a pound) until it sparkled like a cut gem. It was wedge-shaped, with two sloping surfaces like the roof of a house. Finished, he packed it off to Philadelphia, where officials tested it to be well within the required allowances, minute as they were. Unerl's orders increased. He added a man or two. The work continued to meet the terrific allowances and the orders continued to increase. Unerl set up equipment on the ground floor of his home.

"Ousted" From Home

Business became better. Unerl set up equipment on the second floor . . . then even in the attic and moved out to another building.

ARMY "EYES" AT WORK—This front-line photograph, taken in New Guinea, shows, in foreground, American soldiers operating a director which automatically governs the firing of four guns. In the background an anti-aircraft battery commander's telescope is in use.

Ordinance officials estimate he now has more than 200 people working for him making vital roof prisms and lenses for binoculars.

They found a way to train green men to one of the world's most exacting professions in a period of months—instead of years. They discovered that production was increased when they let the inexperienced men do the rough grinding and saved the highly skilled precision grinders for the finishing touches.

They gathered their workers from the fields, the mines, the steel mills of West Virginia. Today they employ hundreds of formerly unskilled workers.

One might think that an industry which has leaped into prominence in a mere year and a half might be tending a bit further toward quantity than quality. Fortunately, that is not the case in the grinding of precision lenses in the United States.

Experts at the instrument shop at the Frankford arsenal have had opportunity to examine captured German and Japanese optics. They report:

"Some of their stuff is pretty good, but it certainly does not come up to the standard of the elements being produced right here in the United States."

By this time, of course, the Polans knew something about precision grinding. In fact, they knew

The charges were denied by the OWI.

Quoting an imaginary "American political commentator," OWI's special broadcast which was beamed out of New York Monday said that the United States will continue the war whether Mussolini, Badoglio or "the Fascist king himself" rules Italy. The broadcast said that these were "typical unofficial reactions" to the ousting of Benito Mussolini.

Following the President's heated attack on the broadcast which he said should never have been made, it was reported that the OWI was ordered to avoid personal attacks on King Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio.

Acting OWI Director Milton S. Eisenhower said that the broadcast was not directed specifically at Italy but was sent to England. It was admitted, however, that it could be heard in Italy.

Eisenhower said that prior to Sunday, the day Mussolini resigned, the OWI attacked Fascism on its broadcasts and all individuals connected with it.

"Since Sunday," he said, "the tone and substance of the OWI broadcasts indicate that OWI policy is that any government, such as this one, which announces adherence to Hitler and continues to fight with him and against the forces of the United Nations is an enemy of the United States and the other United Nations."

Meanwhile, the incident was attacked by Representatives Clifton Woodrum of Virginia and Louis Ludlow of Indiana, Democratic members of the house appropriations committee who defended OWI's foreign propaganda work when the agency was recently under fire in congress and it appeared that a congressional investigation would be launched.

Woodrum said he "greatly deplored the fact that OWI should have made such a stupendous blunder at this critical time."

"This incident of which" the President has taken cognizance makes it necessary for congress to give the very closest scrutiny to what OWI is broadcasting to foreign countries on the responsibility of this government," he added.

FLOOD WATERS TRAP SIX MEN IN COAL MINE

PITTSBURGH, July 28—Rising flood waters swirling about the entrance to the Hickman Coal Company's Tom's river mine near Bridgeville today trapped six coal diggers attempting to emerge from the pits after a night of work.

The men, due out of the mine last midnight, were trapped when the shaft opening was cut off by rushing waters caused by a torrential rain and lightning storm of record proportions in the Pittsburgh district.

P. J. Callaghan, state mine inspector, declared hope was held that the men were still alive and could be reached when the waters recede.

RAID WARDEN HURT IN TEST DRAWS U. S. PAY

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 28 — Air-Raid Warden Stewart Watkins today had $276.84 from the federal government to compensate him for loss of pay suffered when he broke his leg during a test blackout.

Ambrose V. Guariglio, personnel officer of the Elizabeth Civilian Defense Council, in announcing the first award of its kind in northern New Jersey said the government has assumed all responsibility for losses in pay and medical expenses of OCD volunteers injured on duty.

Watkins will get $850 more for doctor and hospital expenses as soon as details can be obtained from his physician who is now serving in Sicily or North Africa.

CITY SOLDIER HELD AT HAYES; AWOL CHARGED

Private Richard Eccard, 24, absent without leave from Camp Stewart, Ga., was held at Fort Hayes, Columbus, Wednesday, awaiting his return to the Georgia camp.

Eccard was taken into custody Tuesday afternoon by Police Chief W. F. McCrady and Patrolman Turney Ross after they received a report from the commanding officer at Camp Stewart that he was missing and was believed to be in Circleville. Eccard lives north of Circleville, but he was discovered at the home of a brother in the north end of the city.

"The soldier saw us about the same time we saw him," the chief said, "and he set sail. So did we."

The chase developed south on Court street with Patrolman Ross forcing Eccard's car into the curb near High street on Court. The youth surrendered without a fight.

Chief McCrady said young Eccard was carrying a pass dated July 10 and 11.

WALLACE DRAWS FIRE FROM GOP

he had accomplished on the home front in the last 10 years.

Denouncing Wallace for classifying all those opposed to the fourth term as Fascists, Spangler declared:

"The course upon which Mr. Wallace has set his feet, by attempting to label the 25 million voters in America who are opposed to the New Deal as Fascists, is playing right into Hitler's hands. Carried to its ultimate, the Vice President's course would mean Civil War, but, of course, nothing that Mr. Wallace does is really carried through."

"The vice president has forgotten we are fighting a war. Instead, blasted out of his war job because it had cracked up around him, exposed as a bungler, as father of the food shortage in America, branded as injuring the war effort by a fellow cabinet member, he turned to playing politics. He has turned the clock back to a new hour of name-calling, and an attempt to set group against group, farmer against factory worker, and to unleash 15 months of bitter political warfare on the country."

Spangler added that "if there is Fascism in this country, it stems from the 'palace guard' of the New Deal" which, he pointed out, created NRA, AAA, FSA, OPA and OWI.

Spangler said he agreed with Wallace that the vice president needs to "get acquainted with folk throughout the country."

"That is what Mr. Wallace has been needing for a long time . . . to get his feet back into the god earth of Iowa and his mind again attuned to the spirit of America," he concluded.

NEW HEAD OF SCHOOL UNAWARE OF FACT

Pickaway township school authorities are trying to locate John Hardin of Kingston to tell him that he has been promoted to superintendent of the Pickaway township school. Mr. Hardin succeeds Carl S. Burger, North Court street, who has been accepted for service in Uncle Sam's army. Mr. Burger will leave early in August for an assignment and classification center.

In the meantime, Mr. Hardin, who served as principal and coach last school term, has started another tour of the Ohio river as a hand aboard a cargo boat. He had just completed a trip from Pittsburgh to New Orleans and back as a roustabout, and started last week on his second journey.

Pickaway school officials have left word at several locks along the Ohio, hoping that word will reach Mr. Hardin soon of his promotion.

hope for peace is "honorable capitulation" to the Allies, the President may outline in some detail the steps which the Italian people must take to withdraw from the war.

Getting rid of the Germans is said to be one of the foremost conditions for peace with the Allies. This government is taking the position that there can be no peace with the Italian nation as a whole so long as German fighting forces remain active in that country, be they in the north or south.

The possibility also is seen that the President may point out to the Italian people that the sooner they surrender to the United Nations, the quicker Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's Allied forces can drive the Germans out of Italy and bring freedom to that country.

Meanwhile, there are strong indications that the United States and Great Britain intend to adopt a stern attitude toward the new royalist regime of King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

There is understood to be no disposition on the part of the American or British governments to show any sympathy for the king or his marshal. As far as this government is concerned, it is recalled the king approved Italy's declaration of war against the United States, while Marshal Badoglio led the Italian invasion of Greece.

If the king and Marshal Badoglio want to take Italy out of the war, the American and British governments are prepared to treat them on terms of unconditional surrender. However, high official sources emphasized that there will be no deal with either the king or his marshal.

There is a growing belief in official circles in Washington that the new Italian government will soon sue for peace with the Allies. Reports of peace demonstrations in Italian cities following Mussolini's resignation have led American officials to believe that neither the king nor the marshal will be able to rally the people in any great national movement to carry on the war for any length of time.

The Italian people appear to be interpreting the fade-out of Mussolini and the collapse of his regime as a major step toward peace, and getting out of the war seems to be their main desire.

While it is considered possible that President Roosevelt will hail Mussolini's downfall as likely to shorten the war, it is believed he will also emphasize the danger that Germany and Japan are now apt to fight more desperately than ever.

New OPA Point Values, Hoisting Butter, Fruit Effective August 1

With Office of Price Administration boosting the point value of a pound of butter to 10 points from a previous figure of eight, a rise in point values of tomato juice and many frozen fruits and vegetables was ordered effective August 1.

August's blue stamps will be good until September 20, overlapping the September stamps by three weeks.

Changes in the August blue stamps follow:

Canned tomato juice increases at the rate of one point a pound, except smaller cans up to 14 ounces are unchanged.

Canned or bottled beans modified in various sizes with some increases and some decreases, but average unchanged.

Frozen fruits and berries increased from six to nine points a pound (customary package being one pound.)

Frozen fruit juices reduced from four to two points a pound. Frozen green and lima beans, cut corn, berries, peas and spinach increased from three points a pound (customary package 12 ounces.)

The increase in point values came as the 1943 crop of canned foods started to reach market. Price valuations were cut earlier in the year when warehouses were filled with 1942 pack and space was needed to put 1943 packed goods.

Jump in tomato juice valuations changed a series of decreases, the OPA indicating that under its program too much tomato juice was being sold when the supply at hand was considered.

The OPA move in making August stamps good until September 20 will not affect the quantity of processed foods and vegetables that may be bought, but may make it easier for housewives to select the foods for which they wish to use their stamps.

Formerly, the overlap period was only for one week. The new butter point period will run from August 1 to September 4.

Stamp values for meats will remain substantially the same as now, but shortening, lard, salad and cooking oils will be down one point.

Butter went up in points in order to bring consumption into line with the available supply, OPA announced.

Demand for butter has been running about five percent above the amount available in the last several months, OPA pointed out.

OPA also gave good news to beef-hungry persons when it said the beef supply would be about 10 percent higher in August than in July in order to offset an anticipated drop in pork supplies.

The situation has been eased in Circleville somewhat in the last few days, several butcher shops that have been without beef reporting some supplies of limited quantities on hand for their customers.

ASHVILLE
First Lt. W. H. Mahaffey of Columbus, has been called to active service and is now at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., for a six-week training course, after which he will be stationed at an army air field at Madison, Wisconsin. Lt. Mahaffey graduated from the college of medicine at Ohio State university June 1942 and received his commission at that time. He has just finished a year's internship at White Cross hospital. He is the son of C. E. and Mrs. Mahaffey of here. His wife and son reside in Columbus.

Mrs. Creed Ward was returned to her home here from St. Anthony hospital by the Schlegel ambulance Saturday, the 6th trip in a week, Mr. Schlegel said. Mrs. Leroy Smith, operated at St. Anthony hospital recently is reported in the "only fair" list. Mrs. Hattie Rife and little Shirley Ann Tustin of Canal Winchester are visiting at the Rife home this week. D. H. Ebert, his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Ward and Mrs. Althea Timmons were recent visitors at the home of Curtis and Mrs. Borrer near Marion. Bram and Mrs. Simpson and son William Wright of Cortland, New York, are here visiting at the home of her parents, C. B. and Mrs. Morrison. Charles and Mrs. Mead and daughter Kitty of Circleville were Sunday visitors at the home of Lucy Vause and daughter Gladys.

In the absence of the regular Daily Herald carrier, Bill Trego, in Boy Scout camp for a week, Junior Malone will act as supply carrier and can be depended on to do his very best in getting the Herald to the right place.

A wind storm of cyclonic proportions accompanied by a heavy down pour of large hail struck at the farm of Harry Birkhead near Jacktown, Scioto township Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock lasting 15 minutes. Wheat threshing was in progress when the storm broke and the wind upset the threshing machine with top side down doing much damage to it. It took the power of six tractors Tuesday to right the machine and many parts were required to get it in operating order again. The storm, we are told by W. O. Dountz who made a survey of territory covered, was about one-fourth of a mile wide and a couple miles in length. The hail in this territory practically ruined the corn crop.

FUNERAL THURSDAY FOR CITY REPRESENTED AT MRS. ENOLA M. BEAVERS LANCASTER CAMPGROUND

Funeral services will be Thursday at 3:30 p. m. at the residence in Harrisburg for Mrs. Enola M. Beavers, 56, wife of Abner Beavers, who died Monday at her home. Mrs. Beavers was one of the first Ohio Bell Telephone Co. operators in central Ohio.

Other survivors in addition to her husband are two sons, Robert, Columbus, and Corporal Floyd Beavers, Miami Beach, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Burchnell, Grove City, and a brother, James Sealock, Grove City.

Numerous Pickaway county persons are attending interesting sessions this week at the Lancaster Methodist campground, the School of Christian Service being conducted this week.

Wednesday's program was highlighted by several interesting meetings during the day, while an address by Dr. Paul Wiant was scheduled at 7:30 in the evening with special music planned.

Thursday is to be W. C. T. U. day with the Rev. Edwin Brown of Athens speaking at the 7:30 p. m. meeting.

BAR S LOWERED FOR YOUTHS BY ARMY AIR FORCE

Youths of the Circleville and Pickaway county district who have failed in air corps examinations at the Lockbourne army air base by 10 points or less are being invited to apply for another examination.

The Lockbourne station has let down the bars to 17-year-olds who failed to make the grade the first time providing their deficiency was not more than 10 percent.

Major John J. Woodside of the base said that 17-year-olds who have failed to make the grade may appear at the base Tuesday or Thursday mornings at 8:15 to undergo complete physical and mental examinations.

Those who are successful are placed in the enlisted reserve and become aviation cadets when they reach 18. Several Circleville district boys have entered air corps training through the program established at Lockbourne, all going into service through regular induction circles but being assigned to aviation just as soon as they are accepted by the medical teams.

JAYCEES OFFER EMERGENCY AID TO CANNERIES

Circleville's Junior Chamber of Commerce went all out at its business meeting Tuesday evening as "Canning Factory Minute Men" when they voted unanimously to offer their services to canneries of the district during the corn packing season.

Judson Lanman, Jaycee president, said that 20 members of the organization have pledged themselves to assist in the corn pack in every way possible. "We are ready to work at any time and as long as the canning factories need us," he said. All active members of the organization signed the "Minute Man" pledge.

The Junior Chamber is also moving ahead in the interest of development of the Ted Lewis Recreation Center in the north end of the city, committees being named to work out various phases of the park development program.

WANTED: GOOD HARD WORKER NO HOUR LIMIT • NO PAY with plenty of night work

There's nothing wrong with the spirit of Americans when they'll eagerly apply for a job like this—and stick to it!

Thousands have taken on the job. They're the men and women who make up the Rationing Boards in every community. Neighbors of yours and mine.

They serve without pay, working late into the night and on week ends . . . because most of them have their regular full-time jobs to do, as well.

They pass up the movies and the bridge games and the other simple pleasures . . . become almost strangers to friends and the folks at home.

All this because there's a tough job, and a thankless one—but an exceedingly necessary one—to be done if we are all to share in keeping the home front and the war front strong.

These local Rationing Boards, with the generous help of school teachers, have smoothly and efficiently handled the tremendous burden of installing the rationing systems on tires, gasoline, fuel oil, sugar, and meats and foodstuffs.

They've done it courteously, helpfully and with infinite patience. They have earned and deserve the co-operation, respect and appreciation of their fellow-Americans.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY (OHIO)

One of a series of SOHIO messages emphasizing the vital role of the Home Front in America's fight for Freedom . . . this time in the hope that this message will help all citizens better understand and co-operate with their local War Price and Rationing Boards in their important work.

THE COLISEUM STANDS

THERE has been relief, not only among Italians but among civilized people in general, that in the great bombing of Rome by American flyers not only the sacred buildings were saved, but other famous relics of the more distant past. Foremost among the latter is the great Coliseum which has dominated the city for nearly 2,000 years, and furnished the pattern for many a modern American stadium.

If the Nazis had been bombing Rome, in a war against Italy, they might have destroyed the Coliseum as they have done with so many other great relics of the past in so many countries. Their savage depredations in London make it seem only too likely. Hitler, the modern Hun, might have done it from sheer jealousy that any such famous monument should exist outside of Germany—which was merely a tribe of savages when the Coliseum was built. But naturally such a crime against civilization would never have been possible for Americans, with their sense of history and their reverence for antiquity. The Italians themselves have now been reassured on that point.

Many an American flyer, in the legitimate assault on modern Roman military targets, as he dropped his bombs must have remembered Byron's famous lines: "While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand; When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall; And when Rome falls—the world!"

Similar reverence for the past will continue as the Allied Nations pursue their task of saving modern as well as ancient civilization from the destroyers.

PEPPING UP foundrymen

FOUNDRIES, as a rule, are not very popular as working places. Reports tell of "poor pay, hard, dirty and hot work and indifferent treatment." Workers hesitate to accept employment in a foundry when there are other opportunities.

Many foundry managers are said to speak disparagingly of their men as a class of workers. "One is reminded by the lack of interest shown by the men who play on the line of a football team, as compared with the backfield. Foundries today are finding, as football teams, that the whole team has to be conditioned, on hand and ready to play ball."

Here, however, is an eye-opener. A certain foundry has equipped its men with sweat shirts bearing their names. And it is reported that "when they come to work, they tear down the ramp in their new shirts like a football team entering a stadium." They also tear into their work.

Vacation this year is not what it used to be, but some philosophic fellows may comfort themselves by saying it never was.

Will there be a rush of carpet-baggers to the old world now, for government jobs?

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON.

LIFE SAVING IDEA

WASHINGTON—Herewith is a suggestion to the leaders of American citizens of Italian descent by which this columnist believes we can save the lives of American boys, British boys, and Italian boys. If I were Mayor LaGuardia, Mayor Rossi of San Francisco, Judge Pecora of New York or Congressman D'Alesandro of Baltimore I would make an appeal to Prime Minister Churchill along the following lines:

To the Prime Minister of England:

We Americans of Italian descent respectfully submit a proposal which we believe will save the lives of British and American boys now fighting in Italy. We also believe it will take Italy more quickly out of a war which she never should have entered and which the bulk of the Italian people hate and deplore.

Our proposal is meant as no reflection upon your great leadership, without which the British Empire and its allies would not be where they are today. To anyone less broad-gauged in mind and vision we should hesitate to make this suggestion.

However, we believe that if the British Government withdrew from all direction of political policy toward Italy, leaving political phases of the war entirely in the hands of President Roosevelt, then our former countrymen would much more quickly surrender to the President of the United States.

ITALIAN-AMERICAN TIES

We respectfully submit this, first, because the United States has great ties with Italy. Many of her former sons live here. New York City alone has a greater Italian population than Rome. Millions of our Italian relatives in Italy have confidence, trust and love for the United States. They look to this country as their second home.

Unfortunately this is not true of relations between Italy and England.

Unfortunately Italy and England have shared a certain degree of rivalry in the Mediterranean. This rivalry is no basic obstacle to future friendship and never worried us until fanned into flame by an insatiable dictator. But his poison, dropped year after year into the veins of the Italian people for two decades, cannot be extracted overnight. Thus it remains an unfortunate fact that many Italians wrongly suspect England of territorial ambitions and fear that not merely the Italian islands but even the mainland of Italy will continue under British rule.

President Roosevelt, they know, has no territorial ambitions. They know that every American boy wants only to win the war quickly and get home. They know that with America alone guiding immediate political destinies, Italy would be nursed back to sound democratic government, with no fear of a conqueror's heel indefinitely on her neck.

TAUGHT TO HATE BRITAIN

We in the United States who know you, Mr. Prime Minister, do not for one minute believe that England has any territorial ambitions at the expense of Italy. But the Italian people do not know you. They have been taught to fear and hate you. And it is they whom we must persuade to surrender.

Furthermore, your eloquence is more effective than you realize. Your speech addressed to Italy before Mussolini dragged his helpless people into the war, is well remembered. You warned that playing the 18th hole, are wont to crack their knuckles every once in a while and remark that they are full of acid.

They remain blissfully unconscious of the fact that an excess of acid in the body does not produce pain, but sleepiness. For instance, diabetic coma, when the patient is completely unconscious is a manifestation of acidosis.

As a matter of fact, it is very difficult to produce an acid condition of the blood. Nature likes the juices of living things to be neutral or slightly alkaline, and protects her alkalinity fiercely.

Acid Treatment for Epilepsy
A method of treating epilepsy is to keep, or attempt to keep, the blood slightly acid. This, while not going so far as to produce sleep or coma, has a soothing effect on the brain and thus conduces to the prevention of attacks. The latest medicine for epilepsy is a form of glutamic acid which has this effect.

But for many years a standard and in some cases quite successful treatment for epilepsy was the ketogenic diet which, by furnishing fat in large quantities to the reduction of sugar and starch in the diet, created an acid condition also.

In epilepsy the use of the diet reduces the number of convulsions sometimes completely. The sympoms of about 30 to 35 per cent of patients who follow the diet six months are controlled; the condition of another 30 to 40 per cent is improved; about 30 to 40 per cent of all patients are not benefited.

Best Results in Young
The best results are obtained in children and young adults who are just beginning to have seizures, and in whom the regularity of convulsions has not yet become a habit. Children stand the diet well. And they are far more faithful to it than most adults. If they get some benefits, they are logical enough to keep on with what is good for them.

This is shown in the story I have told before, but which will bear repeating, of a doctor friend of mine who was in the general store of a small town and bought some candy to give to a group of youngsters who had gathered around. One of them refused and said, "Mister, I wouldn't eat a piece of that candy for 50 dollars, because if I did, as sure as anything I'd have a fit before I got home." He had been on a ketogenic diet for two years.

Ketogenic Diet

A typical day's ketogenic diet is:

Breakfast: Fruit; 3 slices bacon; 1 egg; 1 slice bread; 2 squares butter; 1/4 glass 40 per cent cream.

Lunch: Meat; 5 per cent vegetables; butter; 1/4 glass 40 per cent cream; fruit dessert.

Dinner: Meat; vegetables; salad with dressing; 1 slice bread; 2 squares butter; 1 glass half milk and half cream; cheese and crackers; fruit dessert.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, July 28

A RATHER difficult state of affairs is indicated by certain adverse aspects among important planets. There may be menace of fraud or imposition, with an undercurrent of treachery and intrigue. These may be overcome by shrewd attention to the logic and reasonableness of problematical situations. A danger may arise from too expensive and ambitious a view, as well as by looking at things from a morose, sullen and perhaps vindictive attitude. Rationalize any threatening circumstances, safeguard the position, property and other real possessions. Support from influential persons may change the complexion of difficulties.

sons may change the complexion of difficulties.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may turn a difficult and perplexing state of affairs from an adverse and menacing one into something gratifying and productive. An obstinate and morbid mental attitude may prove baneful. But in all efforts at stabilizing the position and property, be alert to snares, schemes and other intriguing predicaments. Keep eyes and ears open and work intelligently for cherished goals.

A child born on this day although inclined to be pensive and possessive, yet may have sturdy qualities to win support from those in power.

THESE DAYS when a bomb-whacky Berliner wakes up in the morning to find the sky black with clouds, a torrential rain falling and a gale blowing he, no doubt, murmurs: "What a lovely, lovely day!"

SYNOPSIS

KAREN BELL, wealthy and lovely, has been the sweetheart of another member of her rich Florida set. PAUL WYATT, since childhood. However, she surprisingly encounters a young stranger, obviously not of her social standing, and learns that he is MARTIN HALIDAY.

YESTERDAY: Buffy, Karen's little nephew, asks her to kiss him good-night at the end of his first day at the Bell home.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

SO MARTIN HALIDAY had been right again, after all. She had known the right thing to do and to say. Karen had been afraid that that first impulsive embrace might have been the wrong thing for her to do. She had felt the trembling of Buffy's small body, seen him strive with set lips to keep back the tears, and so she had thought he had not wanted her to make a "fuss" over him. She knew so little about small boys; it seemed that kisses were all right even, for the big boy Buffy had said his mother had told him he must be when no one was looking on. Before others, especially before men, Paul and his grandfather, the child must try to be a big boy, no matter how difficult, but alone, with a woman, he could be just the little boy his five years allowed.

"He is such a brave little boy," Karen said to Paul, her voice warm with her pride and love. She had promised Paul she would join him as soon as she had seen her nephew tucked into bed. She had talked of nothing except the child ever since she was so full of this new love. "Just imagine leaving your own home, your mother and father, everything you had ever known, to come so far away to a strange country to live among people you had never even seen! Imagine taking that long, strange journey on a big boat all by yourself, if you were only five years old! Buffy has lots of courage. He is a brave little boy, I know."

"He seems like a game enough little chap," Paul agreed, if not with quite the pride or ring of conviction in his tone Karen's held. "He's scared of airplanes, though. Gets white and shakes all over just when he hears one in the sky. I suppose he has heard about raids nearby, if he has not actually experienced one. That was why your father decided we'd come by train. It certainly is a mean way to travel, when one is used to flying." Paul flew his own private ship; he was a good pilot. He did not, in his tone, condemn the little boy for his fear of flying, but it was easy to see that no matter what the child might have experienced, Paul could not quite understand such fear, or at least he thought it would have been better to give in to it.

"Anyone who had heard about, or been near those terrible raids and bombings, would be afraid of a plane!" Karen defended such fear with a deep sympathy. Why, just the pictures she had seen in newspapers sent cold chills of fear over her entire body. "I suppose a little boy like Buffy would not know a ship overhead, whether it would be an enemy plane or not. I'm glad dad came by train. And I still think Buffy is the bravest little boy I ever met." She had not told Paul about that good night kiss that had revealed so much to her woman's heart. The child was only a baby, but no man could be expected to realize that.

"He'll learn," Paul said. "I'll take him up some day, teach him to love flying. Sure, he's a nice little kid, darling. But couldn't we try, for a change, to talk about something else now? Do you realize that I might get jealous of that young nephew of yours if you keep on and on? And that this is my first night back and I have a few things I want to talk about and you might concentrate on me now?" His voice was bantering, but his brown eyes were serious, even reproachful. He actually looked, and sounded, as if he might be a bit jealous of Buffy.

Karen laughed at that. She said, "You're just a kid, yourself. All men are, although they all pretend they are so big. You shan't take Buffy up in any airplane for a long while, not until I am convinced it would be all right for him. A woman knows best about some things, instinctively, I guess. But, yes, I'll concentrate on you for a little while."

"Good!" Paul tossed her a smile to show he really held no grudge, or jealousy, but he did feel Karen was making too big a fuss over the child. However, that was a woman's way, as she had said. Women would make babies out of boys if they were left alone without men to teach them they had to learn to fight back. In this tough world you had to pretend to be bigger than you knew you were. "Shall we walk down to the ocean?" It was their usual means of seeking solitude, almost their nightly ritual when together.

But Karen shook her head. "I'd rather not tonight." She did not want to look at the ocean, or the moon over it. It would not be that same big golden moon that had held such magic. Probably there was a new moon now, a silver crescent, but she did not want to be reminded of certain things connected with the moon that still weighed on her conscience like the haunting strain of a remembered melody. Not this first night of Paul's return.

"It's cozy here," she said, seeing the disappointment in Paul's face that he would not voice. "We have the terrace all to ourselves. Cousin Ellen and Jane have gone to a movie and dad said he was going to retire as soon as Mr. Waters, his lawyer, leaves. The truth is, Paul, I'm too tired to budge from this comfortable chair. I've been rushing around like mad the past few days, all the time you've been gone, in fact. I've been leading a full life from dawn to bed. Turned over a new leaf as I get up at sunrise and go to bed about the time we used to start out. I've decided I ought to be useful as well as ornamental, you see."

Paul did not quite "see," but he accepted it. He was, as always, slightly amused. It was another mood with Karen, he supposed, but he was willing to indulge it. "That is fine," he said, "but in my opinion you are ornamental enough to justify your existence. And I never have thought of you, darling, as being useless." He drew his own chair closer to hers. It was nice here on the terrace, although the beach house might have been nicer for the moment at hand. "Have you forgotten that we have something to attend to tonight? Or are you going to try to put me off again?"

"I haven't forgotten," she answered. She was glad that it was dark on the terrace. That concealment of hers was certainly a nuisance, although she had tried to shift all blame she might feel onto the moon. She was tired, mentally as well as physically, a sort of emotional exhaustion. So much had happened in such a short while, so many changes. "I'm not going to put you off," she said. She knew, of course, that Paul was talking about the ring. She wanted him to give it to her now, as soon as possible. She wanted to start wearing it. Not so much because she needed that reminder, though maybe she did, at that, as that she would not want him to think she wanted a postponement.

"Good!" It was the word he always used when especially pleased. He hoped that Karen would be pleased with his choice for her. And though it was such a tiny package he took from his pocket it had seemed to gain in weight as he had carried it, like that other bother some weight that he carried inwardly since the night of the Festival, when he had been down by the sea with Eva Parks when he should have been with Karen. It had not been his fault, not any more than what had happened by the sea, although it had troubled him since, too. It had not been Eva's fault. She was such an impulsive youngster, throwing herself at him as she had, losing her pretty head. And of course he was only human. He had been touched at such worshipful adoration, he had lost his head for a brief second. But then he had carefully explained to Eva that all she felt for him was a childish sort of hero worship, and that although he was terribly fond of her, there was Karen, as of course she knew.

"I hope you will like it and always wear it," Paul said now, coming back to Karen quickly since he had resolved never to think of that foolish business with Eva again. He held out the little white box, opened to disclose a ring that was set with such a large and perfect white diamond, surrounded by sapphires, that its brilliance sparkled even in the thin stream of light that came from the long windows of the big house.

"Of course I shall like it," Karen returned, speaking quickly, almost breathlessly, too, maybe because it was such a gorgeous ring, almost too gorgeous. Once on her finger it would blaze the fact that she was "tied" to some other man, as Marty had said when he had told her she ought to wear a ring to help him remember that. Well, she would be wearing it when she saw him again, that he could feel very safe indeed. "I will always wear it," Karen promised. For then she would be safe, wouldn't she, from everything, including a wily Fate and any kind of moon?

U. S. "Ghost Fleet" Haunts Jap Warlords in Pacific

WASHINGTON—A powerful "ghost fleet" comprised of American warships that have been sunk or reported sunk by the enemy since the Pearl Harbor attack are beginning to plague the Japanese high command and undoubtedly are proving a source of embarrassment to Nipponese radio commentators.

There is nothing supernatural, however, about the vessels, and their crews are red-blooded American youths who are itching to take "another crack" at the so-called "invincible" Japanese fleet.

American warships in this curious category are either new vessels named in honor of ships that were sunk, or combatant craft that were badly damaged and reported sunk by the enemy but reached port and have been repaired.

Thus the United States and the world some day will read again about the exploits of aircraft carriers named the Lexington, Yorktown and Hornet, powerful new successors to fighting ships that were sunk in the early days of the war when America was striving desperately to check the Japs.

Japanese propaganda broadcasters should have a difficult time telling the world again some day that "our powerful fleet has destroyed the American aircraft carrier Lexington."

This is especially true of the "Lex" because the Jap high command on three different occasions claimed they sank the ship before she actually was destroyed in the Battle of the Coral Sea in May, 1942. Shortly after the Lexington was sunk, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox renamed a carrier under construction in honor of that vessel and the new ship probably is plying the Pacific waters in search of the Japs.

The same procedure was followed in the cases of the carriers Hornet and Yorktown. New ships bearing those names should be

With the fleet or nearly ready to join.

The name Hornet is particularly abhorrent to the Japs because it was from her flight deck that Maj. Gen. James ("Jimmy") Doolittle's intrepid Army pilots took off in twin-engine bombers for the first bombing of Tokyo in April, 1942.

That was merely one of many exploits in which the Hornet participated. Even when she finally was sunk during the battle of Santa Cruz in October, 1942, her planes helped inflict heavy damage on at least one enemy battleship, three carriers and five cruisers.

In the Battle of Midway, the old Yorktown and her planes helped smash a Japanese invasion armada of 80 ships.

Even more spectacular are the records of warships like the carrier Enterprise, the cruisers Marblehead, Boise, San Francisco and others which were damaged in battle and which the Japs believed they had sunk, but which returned to the battle line after being repaired.

The Marblehead truly is a "ghost ship" to the Japs. She was reported sunk three times in the Java sea and Indian ocean in the early days of the war.

Even official quarters in Washington for a time thought perhaps the warship was gone. However, she eventually turned up in an east coast port a floating wreck after a grueling journey half way around the world. She was back on duty a few months later.

In the front line of this "ghost fleet" can be counted six of the eight battleships that the Japs believed they had destroyed during the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.

On the first anniversary of the attack, Secretary Knox reported that at least three of the "destroyed" battleships had returned to the fleet and others undoubtedly have been refitted since then.

All badly damaged in the attack, the list consists of the California, Nevada, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Tennessee. Even the Oklahoma, which was capsized, has been refloated and may fight again some day.

Among other ships actually sunk whose names have been given to new and more powerful vessels are the cruisers Astoria, Atlanta, Chicago, Juneau, Houston, Northampton, Quincy and Vincennes. There are others, including destroyers and small craft, too numerous to mention.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Gas Warfare to Protect Peach Trees in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

ALTHOUGH GAS warfare has thus far been outlawed in the present war, Victory gardeners may have to resort to it to protect peach trees against borers. The most serious insect enemy of the peach tree in the Victory garden, or elsewhere, is the peach borer. This insect may girdle and shorten the life of the tree.

Peach borers winter over in the worm stage on the trunks of peach trees, penetrating deeper into the bark as they become larger. The accompanying Garden-Graph shows a section of the trunk of a peach tree with the bark removed to reveal a mature borer in the deep tunnel it has channeled.

To control such borers place crystals of paradichlorobenzene on the surface of the soil around the trunk of an infected tree during the fall, as illustrated in the Garden-Graph. Despite war shortages these crystals can still be obtained in small quantities or they may be had in department stores, where they are sold under various names for the control of moths.

For a tree under three years of age use one-half ounce of the crystals. From three to six years, use three-quarters ounce, and for older trees, one to one and a half ounces. Place the crystals in a ring around the tree, as illustrated, keeping them one inch back from the bark, yet not farther away than three inches. Cover over the crystals with soil to confine the gas.

BAMBINO BACK HOME AS 'STAR' MANAGER

NEW YORK, July 28 —George Herman Ruth, the Babe himself, returned to New York's Yankee stadium today as manager of the "Yank-Lands," a hybrid team made up of Yankee and Cleveland players pitted against the Chapel Hill, N. C., navy pre-flight cloud-busters in a double-header for the War Relief and Service Fund.

First game of the twin bill will be a regular league game between the Yanks and Indians, with the navy taking on a combination of both teams in the after piece. The cloud-busters is made up of an all-star team with navy trainees from all Major League clubs.

RUFFING SCORES NO-HIT, NO-RUN BASEBALL TILT

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 28—For years Charles "Red" Ruffing, fireball New York Yankee pitcher, tried unsuccessfully to enter baseball's hall of immortals by hurling a no-hit game.

Then Ruffing gave up baseball to join up with Uncle Sam's fighting men, an act which today has permitted him realization of that dream.

For Red has that no-hitter. He even fanned the great Joe DiMaggio, his former teammate, to spark his sixth ferying group nine to a 2-0 win over DiMaggio's Santa Ana army air base team yesterday.

Ruffing not only gave up no hits but only one man reached first—and that was on an error.

DiMaggio was able only to pop up the times he was at bat with the exception of the one strike-out.

Ruffing had the help of Nanny Fernandez, former Boston Brave shortstop, who made a spectacular catch of what would have been a sure single early in the game. Fernandez also starred at the plate, getting a triple for the only extra-base hit of the game.

The ferying group's runs were scored by Harry Danning, former New York Giant catcher, and Chuck Stevens, who starred for the St. Louis Browns.

MORE PRESSURE PUT ON ARMY TO LIFT GRID BAN

NEW YORK, July 28—Re-consideration of the army's refusal to permit its college trainees to participate in intercollegiate athletics was to be pressed today at the opening of two-day sessions of the central office for Eastern Intercollegiate Athletics.

The navy allows its trainees to participate in intercollegiate sports.

Topics under discussion will include a possible shift of some college games to Sunday, restrictions, on defensive formations to aid war-tripped coaching staffs, limitation of teams, owing to transportation problems, eligibility problems, abandonment of scouting and admissions to be charged service men.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, former West Point graduate manager of athletics and now Federal Works Administrator, John B. Kelly, chairman of the Federal Security Agency's committee on physical fitness, and Rep. Samuel A. Weiss, of Pennsylvania, a critic of the army's non-competitive training program, will address the convention.

DAIRMEN WIN HANDILY FROM PANTHER OUTFIT

Blue Ribbon Dairy softball team, with Pug Fowler pitching, won a 9-3 game in the City League Tuesday evening from the Panthers.

The Panthers held the lead for a while but were forced to surrender it.

Games the remainder of the week include:
Wednesday: Bloomfield vs. Williamsport.

Thursday: Lutherans vs. Methodists.

Yanks, Cards Starting To Move Away From Other Loop Opponents

NEW YORK, July 28—The awful spectre of run-away victories by the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals in the Major League pennant races seemingly is about to become a reality.

Yet, their utter domination of their leagues has been sufficiently long delayed to prevent a sag in interest and the fears of the moguls have been dissipated by this time. After a slow start and the threat of the worst attendance in modern baseball history, the crowds began to turn out and nothing that is likely to happen from here on to the finish will make a dent in the so-called national pastime.

While the supporters of supposed contenders in the two leagues may find much to grieve about they still will turn out to see their favorites fight it out for whatever they can get—as these fans have been doing—and, of course, whenever the pace-setters come to town the crowds swell accordingly.

Aside from those aspects of the situation, the World Series of 1943 seems to be a virtual cinch for an encore of the 1942 presentation. The Yanks lead in the American League as of today by 8 1/2 games and the Cards are out in front in the National by 9 1/2.

The Yanks picked up a half-game on the idle Detroit Tigers yesterday when in the 13th inning Pinch-Hitter Bill Dickey shot a scratch single through the infield with two out to beat the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 3, and give Hank Borowy, who went the route, his sixth victory of the season.

Home Runs Vital
Home runs previously had produced a 3-3 tie. Charley Keller hit his 13th for the Yanks in the sixth with two on and Johnny Rocco busted one for the Indians in the seventh, also with two on.

The St. Louis Browns staged a seven-run uprising in the eighth and ninth innings to beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 4, and in a night game, only other American League contest, at Washington, the Chicago White Sox defeated the slipping Senators, 6 to 5.

The Cardinals picked up a full game over the idle Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League by twice beating the Philadelphia Phillies, 6 to 2, and 5 to 2.

These wins marked the 10th and 11th in a row for the Cards, who won behind Murry Dickson's five-hitter in the opener, then bounced back in the nightcap on Howie Krist's eight-hitter, which was his eighth win of the season. Stan Musial hit a homer with one on to sew it up.

The Boston Braves handed Bucky Walters his 11th defeat in beating Cincinnati, 6 to 2, behind Jim Tobin. Homers by Van Robays, Elliott and O'Brien accounted for six runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the New York Giants, 8 to 5, in the only other game.

GUNDER HAGG WILL RUN FOUR MORE U. S. RACES

NEW YORK, July 28—Gunder Hagg definitely will run four more mile races in this country and in the grand finale to be held here at Randall's Island on August 19 the officials will set the stage for a record-breaking performance insofar as it is possible, Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., announced today.

Hagg will make his next start at Cleveland on July 31, then will appear at Cincinnati on August 7 and is tentatively booked for August 14 at Indianapolis, after which he will return here for his farewell at Randall's Island, scene of his first race in this country.

Competition in the final here will be provided by Gil Dodds and Bill Hulse from scratch and by a number of others yet to be named who will be given handicaps and thus be in position to draw Hagg out to possibly his best effort in this country—and perhaps a new record.

His performance at Boston last Saturday night, when he approached the record with a 4:05.3 run, has spurred new interest in his tour and caused arrangement of the final race, Ferris said.

VANDY SCHEDULED FOR ARMY UNIFORM SOON

CINCINNATI, July 28 — Declaring he would "pitch up to the last day," Johnny Vandermeer, Cincinnati Reds hurler, said today he was scheduled for induction in August. Vandermeer transferred his draft registration from Ridge Wood, N. J. to Board 7 in Cincinnati.

UPSETS SCORED

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 28 — Seeded entries in the annual western juniors and boys tennis championships looked forward with apprehension today after the rough handling given some of the favorites in yesterday's play. Jerry Evert of Chicago provided the major upset of the tournament when he put away second-seeded Charles Oliver, Jr., of Perth Amboy, N. J., 6-4, 8-6, in a third round match in the junior division. Then Billy Windham of Orlando, Fla., seeded No. 7, was overwhelmed, 6-1, in his first set with Bob David of Chicago, he rallied in the second but nevertheless lost, 9-7.

FITZ TO HEAD PHILLY OUTFIT

Dodger Pitcher-Coach Wins Post Held By Buck Harris Since Start Of Season

PHILADELPHIA, July 28 — "Fat Freddy" Fitzsimmons, former Brooklyn Dodgers' pitcher-coach, today celebrated his 42nd birthday and appointment as 21st manager of the tottering National League's Phillies.

In a move which surprised everyone, including the ousted Bucky Harris, the board of directors of the Phillies announced that Fitzsimmons has been engaged as manager "to assume his duties before the night game in St. Louis" tonight. The announcement continued:

"The board stated that it had considered the manner of the management of the club at great length and believes that the action taken was in the best interests of the successful operation of the club."

Harris, reached at a St. Louis hotel, was startled by the news.

"I haven't heard a thing about it," he declared.

It was rumored—but not confirmed—that a rift had occurred between Phillies' President William D. Cox and Harris over some of the player deals recently engineered by Cox.

This will be Fitzsimmons' first managerial post. Harris previously served terms as manager of the Washington Senators, at Detroit and with the Boston Red Sox.

Phil Fans Amazed
Phillies' fans were amazed at the change in posts. Earlier in the season Harris was credited with practically lifting the cellar National League team by its bootstraps and making a creditable and fighting organization out of it. Recently, however, the Phillies have slumped and are now only one step removed from the basement again.

Harris had a one-year contract with the Phillies. Just what settlement will be made to him was not disclosed, although it was thought likely he will be paid off in full.

The new manager has won 217 and lost 146 games in a pitching career extending over the last 19 years. This season with the Dodgers he won three and lost four. He spent 12 years with the New York Giants before being traded to the Dodgers in 1937 by Bill Terry.

Work Starts on Second Pipe Line Through Pickaway County.

20 INCH TUBE TO SUPPLEMENT FIRST CARRIER

Foreman Company Holds Contract For Work In Local District

CRUDE OIL NOW MOVING

Fuel Moving Toward East Coast At Rate Of 30 Miles A Day

Work on the second oil pipe line through Pickaway county was started Wednesday by the Charles S. Foreman Co., the firm holding the contract for 102 miles of 20-inch line running west of the Muskingum river. Two other contractors, Bechtel-Dempsey and Ray Smith, will complete the 20-inch line through Ohio.

Spokesmen for the Foreman Co. said that supplies of pipe have been moving in, work crews have been lined up and everything is set for construction of the second line through the middle west. The new line, right-of-way for which has been granted by county commissioners and by farmers whose properties were crossed by the first line, the big 24-inch crude oil carrier, will serve as a carrier for petroleum products of all sorts. A Foreman Co. spokesman said Wednesday that gasoline will be carried, and other products produced in the Texas oil fields around Beaumont district will be sent through the lines to the oil-hungry east coast for military and defense factory use. Later gasoline sent east may be used for civilians' automobiles when the supply for emergency equipment is taken care of.

Crude Oil Flowing
Crude oil is now flowing through the 24-inch main in Pickaway county, about 280,000 barrels of oil moving through the local lines each day. The oil, traveling about 30 miles a day, has reached a point almost to the Pennsylvania line, pipeline men report. They expect crude oil to reach the Bayonne, N. J. area shortly after August 1.

Inspection was made of the 24-inch line through Pickaway county the latter part of last week and every detail in the line built by the Bechtel-Dempsey Co. was found to be flawless. The stream crossings made by the C. S. Foreman Co. were also found to be perfect.

Work On Station
The big pumping station built on land bought from John Porter, Monroe township, is not yet completed, but there is sufficient pressure being put into the lines at Norris City, Ill. to send the oil through the mains at the 30-mile a day speed. Twenty-five pumping stations scattered along the line at strategic points will be finished within the next few weeks. At that time the amount of oil to be sent through the lines will reach more than 300,000 barrels daily.

Repair crews employed by the pipeline outfits have been touring the line in all counties in the last 10 days, clearing up damaged situations.

Prior to starting oil through the main water was forced into the 24-inch line to clear out any refuse left in the pipe so that when the flow of oil got under way there would be no foreign matter in the pipe.

NEW ARMY TRANSPORT BUILT FOR JOB

By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
Central Press Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla.—Not very long ago a plane roared down a runway in Florida and lifted gracefully into the air. It circled the field, dipped its wings in a salute, and headed out over the ocean. There were no speeches, cheers or ceremonies of any character. But the group of Army officials who watched the plane until it was lost in the distance knew that they were witnessing one of the notable developments of World War II—one that will play a tremendous part in the defeat of Germany and Japan.

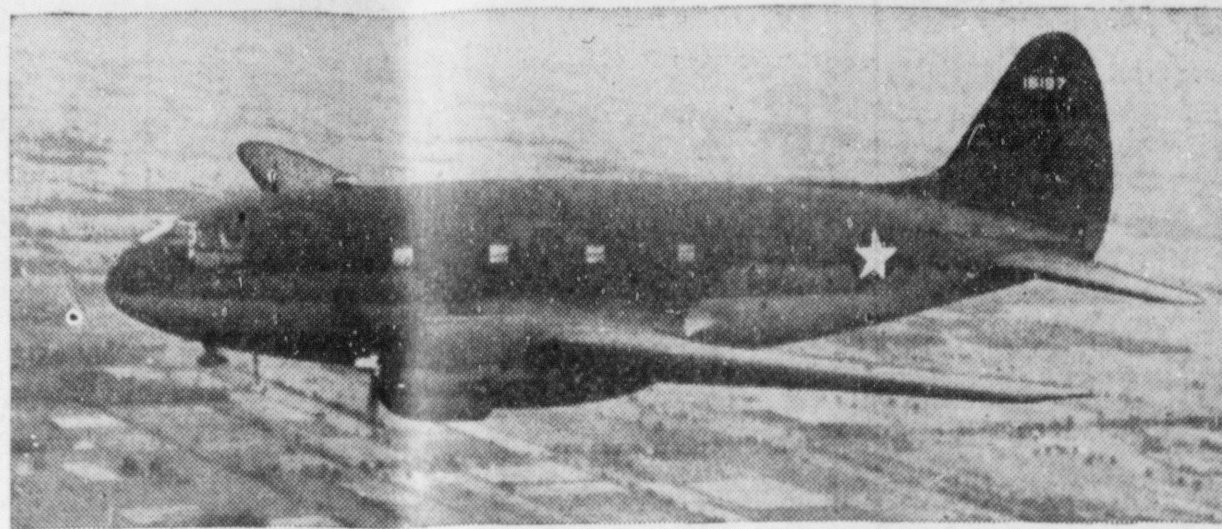

For this was no ordinary plane. It was no bomber or commercial transport hurriedly converted into a cargo plane such as our Army had been forced to use during the early days of the war. It was slow and lumbering cargo ship which was an easy target for fighter planes, such as Germany had used in its desperate efforts to bring troops and supplies to the aid of Rommel in Africa.

Here at last was the Curtiss-Wright C-46, the first giant transport plane built exclusively for Army transport work and handled by a crew especially picked and trained for that purpose.

How many of these cargo planes are now in operation is a military secret. So is the section of the globe where they are regularly delivering their cargoes. But there are other facts which the OWI has permitted to be disclosed, and these facts will provide neither aid nor comfort to the enemy.

The C-46 is as high as a two-story house, and has a wing spread more than one-third the length of a football field. It was built to carry, even with a full load of gas, an amazing tonnage over oceans and continents. It can be loaded with men and jeeps, or crated fighter planes and tanks with their crews, or millions of pounds of medical and technical supplies needed on some distant battle front.

Traveling high in the air at a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour, drawn by roaring engines having the power equivalent to 4,000 galloping horses, this giant plane in one or two quick hops will carry this cargo to Africa, India, China, Russia or Australia.

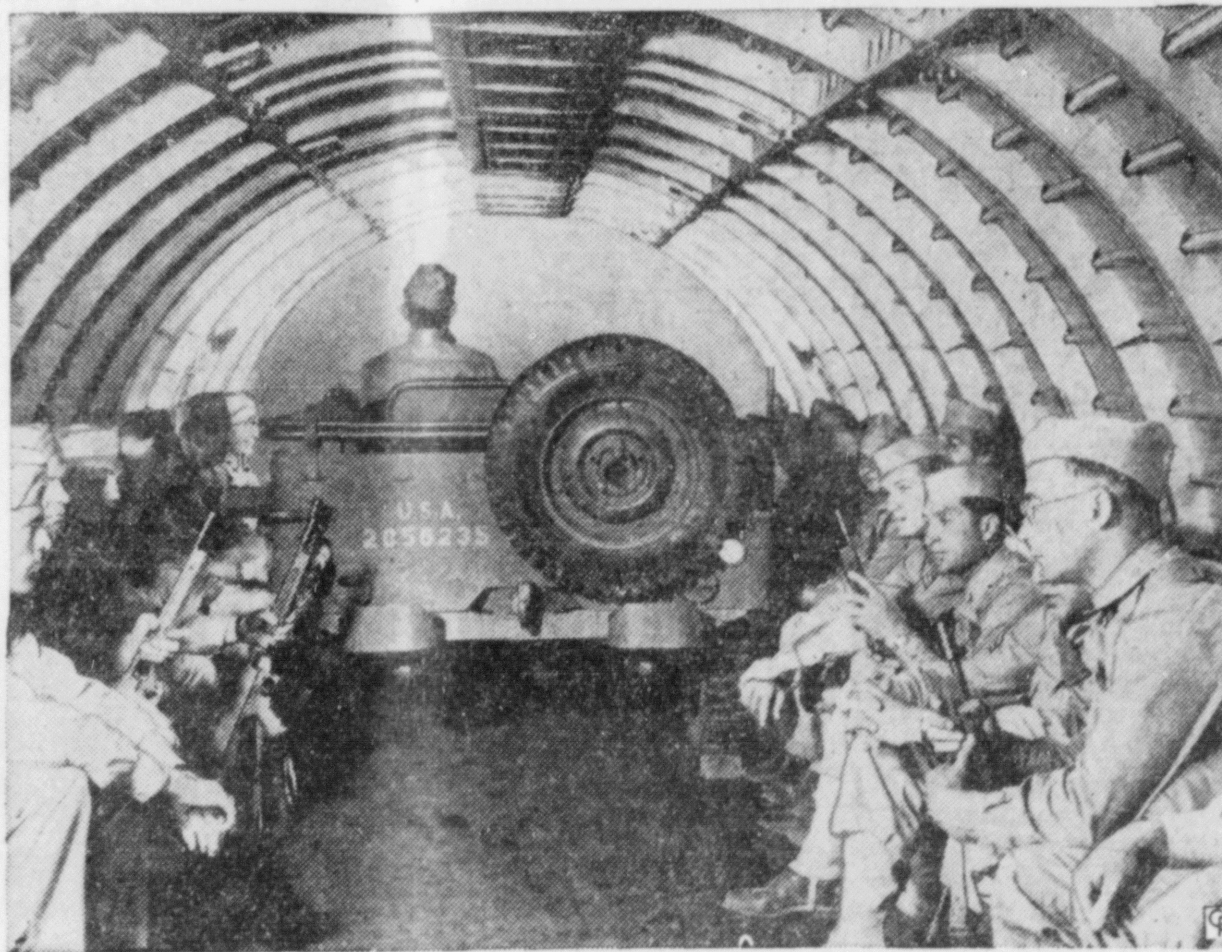

While these planes were being tested at the factory the crews which will pilot them on their long flights were being trained at the Homestead Army Air Base near Miami. This training is under the supervision of Col. B. H. Griffin, a pilot in the first World War and a flyer of the old school. In 1932 Griffin and Jimmy Mattern flew non-stop from Newfoundland to Berlin, cutting 11 hours off the record to that point of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in their round-the-world flight. One of the technical assistants of Colonel Griffin is Capt. Robert Crawford, the composer of the Army Air Corps song.

clock-work precision and harmony of a championship football team. The men must not only know the ship and their work thoroughly, but must have implicit confidence in each other. Colonel Griffin is never satisfied until each crew has the cocky, confident conviction that it is about the best flying team to be found anywhere on earth.

These crews will shortly be called upon to pilot even larger air leviathans than the C-46. The Mar-

PLENTY OF ROOM—This view gives an excellent idea of the roominess inside the new troop-freight transport, the new Curtiss-Wright C-46.

The pilot and co-pilots are graduates of an Army flying school and have had experience in cross-country and overseas flying in the big transports of commercial airlines. The navigator and engineer must have had similar training. The radio operator is a graduate from an Army school.

Harmony Is Vital

It is the job of Colonel Griffin to take the men sent him at Homestead and create smooth-running, harmonious crews. During the seasoning period he is continuously shifting men from one crew to another until he has obtained the tin Mars, described as the largest aircraft in existence, is almost ready for its first trip. So are the Douglas Skymaster and the Curtiss-Wright Commander. The giant Lockheed Constellation is designed to carry cargo and passengers at an altitude of 35,000 feet at a speed greater than that of a Japanese Zero pursuit plane.

The giant plane of them all, however, is that officially designated HK-1, which is now being built by Henry J. Kaiser and Howard Hughes. The gross weight of the HK-1 will be about 400,000 pounds, with a wing spread more than one-half the length of a football field.

The bald or golden eagle's nest weighs from 10 to 12 pounds, and that of the harpy eagle approximately 14 pounds. As a rule, such nests are about three feet across and one foot high, consisting of loosely woven sticks.

CITY SELECTED AS CENTER FOR BOMB REPORTS

George P. Foresman, Circleville commander of Civilian Defense organization, was informed Wednesday by the Ohio OCD that the local control center at the courthouse is the primary control center in the county in reporting unexploded bombs that might fall in the district. All other control centers in the county will be designated as secondary control centers.

All secondary control centers will forward unexploded bomb reports to the primary control center. The primary center then forwards reports to the senior bomb disposal officer at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

OHIO EMPLOYEES TO GET CHECKS FOR BACK PAY

Many Circleville and Pickaway county residents who are on the state payroll will receive checks amounting to 10 percent of their salaries from January 1 to July 1 along with their regular semi-monthly checks Friday.

State Auditor Joe T. Ferguson said Wednesday that retroactive checks are being made out to conform with the legislation voted by the assembly increasing nearly all state workers' salaries by 10 percent. The pay scale is retroactive to the first of the year.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

there was no reason why Italy and England could not live in peace despite Hitler, but that if Italy did enter the war, Britain would tear the Italian Empire to pieces.

You were absolutely right in issuing that warning. But today, Mussolini's skillful propaganda artists are recalling your speech, waving it before the frightened eyes of Italians, warning them of the terrible fate awaiting them if they surrender.

Another of your speeches used by Mussolini's glib-tongued propagandists is the one you made about holding the carrot before the donkey and prodding the donkey with the stick. This was a graphic figure of speech, but it had one drawback. The Fascist radio every night is now reminding the Italian people that you are planning to treat them as donkeys.

Another thing which worries us is the new Allied military government created for Sicily. We note that the British representative on that Commission is Maj. Gen. Lord Rennell of Rodd, former manager of the Bank of International Settlements in Basle. Italians distrust international bankers. Also, though you may not know it, a resolution is now before the U. S. Congress to investigate the Bank of International Settlements.

MILITARY COMMISSIONS
But regardless of Lord Rennell, we do not believe any Britisher should be on the governing commission which takes over Sicily and Italy. They would be excellent advisers. They could cooperate from the sidelines. But we believe the Italian people will cooperate more wholeheartedly and surrender more quickly if these governing commissions are 100 percent American.

You know, of course, that there are some people who believe you dominate Mr. Roosevelt's views when it comes to British-American policy. We do not concur in that. But we do suggest that for the time being, Allied policy toward Italy be directed solely by President Roosevelt.

In this case, we are convinced that British as well as American lives will be saved, the war will be shortened, and Italy much sooner will take her place on the side of the Allies under a truly democratic form of government.
